Ch Tabu's CL Sierra of Eltut
Ch Tabu’s CL Sierra of Eltut

This fine young straight Hamilton bred bitch joins an illustrious group of history making Tabu Lhasa Apsos. Sierra will be selectively specialed until she is bred to Ch Tabu’s Magic Piper of Tiara. After her maternity leave we invite you to watch for this essentially correct bitch back in the specials ring where win or lose she will always represent her heritage with honor.

Thank you Mrs Dorothy O Hutchinson for recognizing Sierra’s quality by choosing her the Best Female Lhasa Apso and AWARD OF MERIT at the prestigious champions only 1993 Westminster Kennel Club show.

CH TABU'S CL SIERRA OF ELTUT

FIRST WEEKEND OUT AS A SPECIAL WON BEST OF BREED !!!
Thank you Judge Joe Tacker.

SIERRA has a friendly happy personality and would like you to come see her "gay and assertive" manner at the next show you see her. She's not very "chary of strangers".

With "all colors equally acceptable" SIERRA'S golden sable color is exquisitely Lhasa Apso and is "not woolly nor silky" but is correctly "heavy, straight, hard, of good length and very dense."

"Size: Variable, but about 10 or 11 inches at shoulder for dogs, bitches sightly smaller" means that SIERRA'S 9¾ inches at the shoulder is correct according to the standard as is her length which is 13½" making her 34.8% longer than tall.

We call these attributes to your attention because we have frequently heard those ignorant of the standard's requirements (in quotes & underlined) criticize her for her most correct traits.

A special thanks to all the judges, breeders and fanciers who know better and told us how nice she looked at Westminster.

Dear ALAC Member:

By the time you receive this message, we should be enjoying Spring. It’s been a real dreary winter here in the Northeast, lots of rain and snowy days and the weekends have been less than enjoyable. I’m hoping for a wonderful spring and beautiful summer....

The Board meeting took place on February 6, 1993 at the Newark Marriott Hotel. We had a quorum, just a quorum at that. I want to thank the Board members and officers who attended from as far away as Oklahoma and Oregon and the Committee Chairs and ALAC members who were present and attended from as far away as California and Washington. It was a good productive meeting and was over by just after midnight. I’ll highlight areas of interest.

Our Trophy Chairs have mailed a survey to all members regarding the trophies awarded at our Nationals. The response has been less than anticipated. If people cannot take the time to express their opinions regarding the trophy selection, then they must be happy with the present trophies presented.

The Awards Chairperson has a new method of presentation in place for this year’s Specialty and it appears that it should be very interesting and exciting. I personally look forward to it.

Norman Herbel, Breed Standard Chairperson informed us that the new color and markings selections are now appearing on the AKC “blue slips”. He also noted that the Committee is working on the illustrations for the Breed Standard Guide.

The Education and Health Chair has put together educational pamphlets and information for persons interested in the Lhasa and the Board approved continuation and revisions where necessary of such.

Ann Lanterman, Futurity Chair discussed all the necessary changes that must be implemented by 1994. The Board reviewed and approved these changes. The Futurity Promotion Committee has been putting together new ways and means for promoting the futurities and the Board was quite pleased with the content of these ideas.

Ann Burton presented the Board with the National Specialty report regarding this year’s Specialty, which will be held the first week of July in Washington DC.

Our new Logo Chairperson, Pat Hufnall showed the Board a new selection of items for sale that display our club logo. The items were wonderful and I’m certain that they are going to be a huge success.

A draft of the proposed Code of Ethics was distributed and the Board approved the draft being mailed to the general membership for comments.

I may not have included everything of significance and I apologize for what I have forgotten. Everything will be published with the minutes shortly.

If any members are interested in serving on any committees, please let me know. If you have a preference, please indicate what Committee you prefer.

Until next time,

Steve Campbell ALAC President

Beware of Pennyroyal

The Cornell University Animal Health Newsletter reports that some flea powders and shampoos now contain pennyroyal, a substance that may be toxic to both you and your animals. Pennyroyal may also be found in “health” food stores as a pure oil preparation. Don’t buy it.

To give you an idea of the toxicity, ill effects have been seen in humans at doses of 500 milligrams per kilogram (approximately two tablespoons for a normal adult). Sixty milliliters (four tablespoons) of pennyroyal oil applied to the coat of a dog treated at Michigan State University by Dr. Margaret Sudekum caused seizures and death.

There is no treatment once the substance is absorbed or ingested. Through repeated washing with mild detergent or shampoo is the best way to remove pennyroyal once it has been applied.

For the botanists among the readership, pennyroyal is a species of mint (Mentha pulegium) native to Europe and the Mediterranean. The species name derives from pulex, Latin for flea.

Canine Cataracts

Dogs are genetically predisposed to cataracts. Breeds most susceptible include Cocker Spaniels, Siberian Huskies, Schnauzers, Golden and Labrador Retrievers, Poodles and Old English Sheepdogs.

Cataracts affect dogs of all ages. As dogs age, the lens can compress and become cloudy. This condition, nuclear or lenticular sclerosis, does not cause blindness, but dogs with cataracts have difficulty seeing in bright light and discerning near objects.

Cataracts are diagnosed by dilating the pupil and examining the internal structure of the eye with a biomicroscope; ultrasound is also used. There are no medical treatments designed to dissolve a cataract, but a dog’s vision can be improved and its discomfort eliminated with removal of the lens. The surgery has a 75 percent to 90 percent success rate.

One surgical technique is phacoemulsification, which is also used in humans. A tiny incision is made and an ultrasonic device is used to destroy the cataract-ridden lens with extremely high-frequency sound waves. The debris is removed by suction. Lens implants are uncommon in canines.

The New Lhasa Apso Puppy Owner's Manual

Compiled by Jean Fergus, Lhasa Apso breeder/exhibitor and Lhasa magazine publisher, this extensive manual will answer just about any question a new owner may have, even those who have never owned a Lhasa before.

This comprehensive, in-depth 20+ page guide for the new owner comes in a full size, (8 1/2 X 11") 3-hole binder. In the covers are pockets, so that additional paperwork can be included, such as the pedigree, registration forms and bill of sale.

As part of the package that goes along with a new puppy, these manuals will save the breeder many hours of instructing and answering questions on a wide variety of subjects.

I want to thank Marilyn Lucas, Cozmos Kennels, for the chance to own a show quality LHASA APSO, for having the faith in me to care for her coat, train and show her to the best of my ability. And to Brad Reese for presenting her superbly in two shows with two four point major wins. One with BOB over the special. And to all the judges who recognized her beauty, even if I was a beginner.

THANKS!!!

Honey will be seen this year in the obedience and specials ring.

Breed Standard Committee:

The American Kennel Club accepted the color and marking choices as submitted by the Breed Standard Committee for registering a Lhasa Apso puppy to be effective on or after November 23, 1992. There is special emphasis on this cautionary reminder: only ONE color code and ONE marking code can be used to describe the color of a dog. For example: black (color) and parti-color (marking) will register a puppy as a Black parti-color and red (color) and black mask with tips (marking) will register a puppy as a red with black mask with tips.

The choices of Standard and Alternate colors are listed along with a definition of each color code; thereby, offering an adequate selection base for properly identifying each Lhasa Apso puppy. You may direct any pertinent question concerning color choices to me as we requested that any or all problems concerning color that are directed to the AKC will be transferred to me as Chairman of the Breed Standard Committee.

It is my hope that this will make future color registrations of Lhasa Apsos more uniform.

Measurement Certification Program Update

First, I would like to thank everyone for the incredible support shown for the Measurement Certification Program in recent months. Your calls and letters of encouragement have been greatly appreciated!

Preparations for our first Clinic are going fairly smoothly, but scheduling does remain a problem. National Specialty week, as everyone knows, leaves little spare time! We tentatively plan to have an hour or two set aside each day of the ALAC National when people can bring their dogs to be measured. A sign-up sheet will be in the hospitality room.

A wicket has been designed for use in the program as none of the products currently available were accurate enough to suit me. The new wicket measures height and length accurately and consistently, and in fact has proven itself so popular that I’ve inadvertently ended up in the wicket manufacturing business! But that’s another story...

Also, as an aid to figuring out longer than tall percentages I have designed a graph that can be used like a multiplication table (facing page). This graph will be available as a handout at the National in July but if anyone would like a copy ahead of time just let me know (please enclose a S.A.S.E. with your request). Remember though, the graph is only as accurate as the measurements taken.

If anyone has any questions please don’t hesitate to call or write. I will be happy to help as best I can, and of course suggestions are always welcome.

Respectfully submitted, Nancy J. Plunkett

Back to The Basics

Hormonal Dermatosis

Hormonal Dermatosis is indicated by bilateral hair loss on the dog's trunk that is not caused by parasites. With the exception of Cushing's disease, its forms are not life-threatening, but it may be three to six months before the hair coat returns to normal, said Ruadhri Breathwach, MVB, MRCVS, at a recent symposium in Belfast, North Ireland.

Hypothyroidism, the most common hormonal dermatosis, tends to occur between the ages of three and 14 years, except in giant breeds, in which it may occur earlier. Breeds commonly affected are Boxers, Irish Setters and Toys. The afflicted dog's skin isn't itchy but it does become pigmented.

Sex-related hormonal imbalance causes skin problems and non-itchy hair loss in the groin or perineal region. An affected animal may show enlarged nipples; a bitch may have an enlarged vulva. Spaying or neutering is recommended. However, if the problem was caused by a hormonal imbalance brought on by very early spaying, there is no cure.

Cushing's diseases may be spontaneous or steroid-induced. The skin will show blackheads and be predisposed to Demodex; there will be high cortisol levels.

We would like to thank everyone who called or wrote to give support and show interest following the publication of Barney’s story. We miss Barney terribly, but there was no more we could do for him. Maybe in his next life he won’t be so angry at the world.

DO'S AND DON'TS WHEN GREETING STRANGE DOGS

It is ironic that many natural and friendly behaviors of humans imitate the aggressive behavior of dogs. Protecting children from dog bites starts with an awareness of how dogs perceive us. Avoiding the bite is often a matter of avoiding high-risk situations that could endanger the child. If you are supervising children and pets these suggestions may be of help:

- Never allow unsupervised contact between infants and dogs. Most fatal attacks on humans by dogs involve children younger than six months.

- Do not allow children to approach strange dogs. If you are determined to take the risk, ask the owner’s permission before the dog and child interact.

- Don't allow the child to mistreat the dog. Eventually, even the most patient dog may decide to end the mauling by return the favor.

- Screaming and running are two behaviors that can incite predatory behavior in almost any dog. Either prevent the child from doing the behavior or confine Fido when the children are playing in this manner.

While MOLLY continues to keep things HOT in the Breed Ring!
Chloe was a handsome bitch of impeccable breeding and impressive ancestry—in short, the pride of any breeding kennel. And she was now at the peak of her productive potential; she was 4 1/2 years old, with a record of having produced perfect litters. Yet here she was, 48 days into her pregnancy, with an aborted litter in her bed.

Considering conditions at the kennel and the care usually given the breeding stock, the last thing one would think of was brucellosis. The kennel had been clean for years, and Chloe herself had tested negative at one year and again at 3 1/2 years. But, as unlikely as it seemed, by the time the tests were in, the awful truth was known; brucellosis had been found and the entire kennel was in danger of being affected. There was no doubt about where the infection had come from; a new stud had been used to reinforce the characteristics of the line’s gene pool. The consequences were dreadful to contemplate.

Brucellosis (often called Bang’s disease in cattle and undulant fever in humans) is caused by a bacterium belonging to the Brucella genus, of which there are six species. Dogs can become infected by four of these species, although the one specific for the dog, and most widely associated with it, is Brucella canis. B. canis is a rather recent discovery, and the first reported case of brucellosis in a dog in the U.S. in 1931 was apparently due to infection by one of the other species. It was not until the early 1960’s that B. canis was isolated in laboratory Beagles, and by 1966 was found in other breeds as well. Since then, it has become very widespread, and is now considered to be an extremely important cause of abortion and infertility.

In the dog, infection by species other than B. canis is usually accidental, and is usually caused by eating infected meat or milk or placentas of aborted cattle or pig fetuses. Ingestion of infected blood or other tissues is also a possible source of infection.

Transmission in naturally occurring cases of B. canis is usually via infected semen or vaginal discharges. Urine and feces also can serve as vectors. It is generally difficult to determine just how widespread the disease is, as infected dogs often give no clue that they are either carriers or shedders of the bacteria until they become pregnant and abort.

Even though many dogs are apparently asymptomatic, a variety of clinical signs may be seen. Dogs occasionally show ocular inflammations, swollen joints, arthritic spurs and intermittent fevers. Swollen lymph nodes, which can be confused with malignant lymphoma, are not uncommon. Unlike lymphoma, however, B. canis usually can be cultured from the infected nodes.

In the affected bitch, abortion is common after the 30th day of pregnancy and is often followed by endometriosis, an infection of the inner lining of the uterus. Asymptomatic bitches, although appearing normal, may have bacteria in their blood stream and shed the organism into the environment. It is also not unusual for them to produce intermittently normal litters interspersed with abortions, even after treatment. Embryonic death and resorption may occur, but this is difficult to demonstrate.

In the male, the most common signs are testicular inflammation followed by atrophy and infertility. Testicular abscesses are occasionally seen, especially in infections due to other brucella species.

The dog appears to be the only natural host for B. canis, as other animal species seem to be resistant to both natural and experimental infection. Humans seem to be an exception, however, as accidental infections have occurred. Therefore, people should be particularly careful when handling suspected or known infected tissues.

Because clinical signs are variable, and often absent, diagnosis is difficult unless bacteriologic and other tests are run.

Isolation and identification of the bacteria are positive proof of infection, and confirm the diagnosis. Because many body tissues and fluids are infected, the potential for isolation of bacteria is high. Blood is among the easiest tissues to obtain, and bacteria can often be cultured from the sample, especially in dogs showing clinical signs. Semen and

From the Health and Education Committee:
Lynn Jamison, Chairman

I plan to have a contribution to every Bulletin. This time I want to mention some of the newer products and services out that you may not be aware of or know much about. Feel free to contact me for further information on any of these.

1) AKC CONSIDERS PUBLIC EDUCATION CO-ORDINATORS THE EIGHTH GROUP:

The AKC continues to expand its emphasis on public education by the designation of its Public Education Co-Ordinators at the eighth group and stressing responsible dog ownership. Programs it has now include public service announcements for television that are playing on over 200 stations nationwide as well as a T-Shirt contest for school children. The contest involves a speaker from a kennel club discussing an area of responsible dog ownership to one or several grades of school children. The children then draw mock T-shirts emphasizing an aspect of what they have learned. The T-shirts are then judged and prizes awarded to the top three winners - co-sponsored by a fast food chain.

The latest emphasis of AKC is for clubs to work together on public education. This is a particularly good idea in areas where the all breed club might be small and specialty clubs numerous. Through the public education programs the AKC hopes to not only foster responsible pet ownership, but also show the public the benefit of dogs as well as quell bad press on "pit bulls" and stem the tide of anti-dog legislation.

2) GEREEN PROFESSIONAL CHOICE DOG FOODS:

This is a new company owned by long-time breeder/exhibitors of dogs. The company was formed because of disenchantment with corporate America - they come up with a product breeders like and then either change the formula; increase the price; or discontinue the product(s). Leading animal nutritionists were consulted and challenged to come up with the best possible dog food - regardless of price. The company then set up distribution channels only through breeder cooperatives. Gereen Professional Choice is manufactured one day and shipped to the coordinators the next day. The food is never warehoused and is not available through distributors. All of the middle-men have been cut out resulting in a Super Premium Dog Food at exceptionally good prices to the dog breeders. Advertising is only in the AKC Gazette and the first time a dog was featured in the advertising it was a Lhasa Apso winning the group that had been one of the first to start on the food even before it was available to the public. The number of breeder CO-operatives is increasing at a rapid pace and soon it will be available in all 48 states according to company owner/spokesperson Noreen Burkhart. The company has a toll free number for information 1-800-358-4908 manned by someone familiar with the product.

3) NEW ICG FROZEN SEMEN STORAGE AND COLLECTION FACILITIES:

Previously this service was available only in very limited areas of the country. Now there are ICG Freezing centers in 21 states and 2 in Canada. This includes a new facility in the Greater Kansas City Metropolitan area in Overland Park, Kansas. ICG (International Canine Genetics) offers services of semen freezing and storage; fresh express semen collection and shipment; ovulation timing tests; breeding

Not to be out-done by littermate Molly . . . STORMY AND TERRI

Once again pointed the first weekend out with Terri; Stormy came home from the January Florida circuit with 11 points including the 5 point major pictured above under judge Florise Hogan. Stormy finished his championship March 5th with a major under judge Douglas Wilson. Terri finished Stormy so fast that many of you did not get a chance to see him. Stormy is the second in the litter co-bred with Jean Taylor to finish this year. Watch for Terri with littermates Diamond Jim and Dalai later this year. This makes the fourth Lhasa Terri has finished for us. With Terri's superb handling, conditioning and TLC we can assure you that you will continue to see Terri with our Meili Lhasas. *pending AKC confirmation
I read with interest and concern last issue’s article on Barney, the troubled Lhasa, and the treatment of his aggression with drugs.

For those who have not read it, the article describes Barney, a Lhasa Apso with serious temperament problems manifested by outbursts of rage, aggressive behavior and biting. In lieu of destroying him, his owners have made extensive use of various drug therapies. The article, an anecdotal description of the treatment, drugs used, and varying results, appeared first in Dog World.

The article, a poignant reminder of the importance of temperament in breeding selection, falls short in presenting this principle as its clear focus. Far-reaching implications are overlooked or not addressed, and there is no single clear message conveyed. Thus, each reader is left to reach a different, perhaps unintended, conclusion. This writer would like to share her concerns both as they relate to this specific situation and to the political landscape.

This article was not presented as a case study appearing in a professional veterinary journal, nor did it originally appear in The ALAC Bulletin. This article appeared in Dog World, an informative publication widely read by knowledgeable pet owners and novices to the fancy. The important message regarding temperament is shrouded in the extensive detail of differing medication protocols used to control serious aggression. The author admittedly takes refuge in using these methods, as is her right. To actively promote this as a realistic alternative to euthanasia is both irresponsible and unfair to owners of such animals.

Dedicated pet owners and novice fanciers are notorious in their unqualified devotion to their animals -- a worthy virtue. Where virtue turns vice is when, unprepared and ill-equipped to make life-or-death choices regarding a BAD dog, these same wonderful, caring people, make serious errors in judgment regarding the disposition of that dog. For benefit of clarity, we are not discussing dogs with correctable behavior problems, which will be dealt with later.

The dogs in question manifest serious temperament deficiencies as described in the article: rage, defensive threatening, and biting. No such dog should be kept medicated or otherwise -- in a household with children or where children are likely to visit, however infrequently. Nor should such an animal be kept with adults not fully committed to living with a dangerous animal and willing to endure the consequences and resultant liability of failure to medicate or medication failure. The legal test of liability, and an accepted legal definition of a "dangerous dog," is the owner's knowledge of previous aggressive propensities or acts by the dog toward humans.

The dedicated pet owner or novice fancier are already burdened with a horrendous problem -- the dog. This is frequently coupled with a sense of guilt that they somehow are at least in part responsible for the dog's problem. Or that they owe life in exchange for the love the dog gives -- on its good days. Serial killer Ted Bundy, who murdered a young woman less than five miles from this writer's home, was perfectly charming on his "good" days.

To the loving owner, the prospect of destroying a pet, compounded with guilt and attachment, makes for an extremely painful decision. This writer does not believe it in the interest of the fancy or these unfortunate owners to present them with an unrealistic alternative, that is, they really don't have to destroy the dog if they just work hard enough at it and unfailingly use drug therapy.

As to the behaviorally-aggressive dog, an overlooked problem is the effect this article will have on owners of poorly- or untrained dogs currently manifesting dominance aggression. Dominance aggression is widely known to breeders and acknowledged even by anti-breeder veterinarian-columnist Michael Fox. It usually occurs when a dog lacks adequate training and human leadership in the family "pack" and attempts to take control as the alpha (leader.) This learned behavior can be corrected with an investment in time, training, proper discipline, and leadership within the family unit.

It is not stretching one's imagination, however, to conceive such an owner, who has neglected this responsibility and allowed the dog to grow "like Topsy," seeking drug therapy as a quick and easy solution to the dog's behavioral aggressive tendencies. Nor is it inconceivable to imagine beleaguered veterinarians acceding to these requests.

There has developed in our society a pervasive notion that we should not have to pay the price for ignorance; that we need not accept the consequences of our own mistakes. Whether we are irresponsible breeders who rationalize away our dogs' obvious problems, good breeders who become victim of others' duplicity, or consumers who ignore the value of basic research and study and buy on impulse, we all must face up to the responsibilities we inherit from what we do.

While it may seem incongruous to relate this issue to the assault on breeders' rights by animal rights activists, upon reflection, it is entirely appropriate. Consider. Legal efforts have been considered to outlaw tail docking and ear cropping. In King County, Washington, less than fifty miles from this writer's home, an attempt was made to outlaw debarking as part of the anti-breeding ordinance. Laws are being proposed to allow entry onto property and seizure of animals considered in need of medical treatment or kept in confining situations. Who defines "medically needy" or "confining?"

The incremental assault on the purebred dog establishment is obvious. Should we expect that animal rights extremists and speciests would hesitate at attempting to mandate drug therapy rather than euthanasia for aggressive dogs?

This may be remote, but it is the direction we will be taken if we fail to step up to the responsibilities of our actions, no matter how painful the consequences. It represents the direction we will be taken by force if we fail to police our own actions and those of our peers. It is the direction we will be taken if we are politically complacent, lazy, or inept.

There are messages here for serious breeders:

-We are responsible for the dogs we breed and are judged by the least of what we produce, not the best.
-We are stewards of our breeds, and as such, the most visible targets of those who do not value or appreciate what we do.
-We must be responsible and prudent in our public statements.
-Our actions are held to higher standards than those of the general public -- which is proper.
-We should be leaders in the legislative arena, rather than reacting to others' efforts.
-We have the most to lose if we remain professionally and politically naive.
-We must remember the political axiom: He who controls the debate wins.

"Daisy's a Champion!!"

CH O'Taka's Lady With An Attitude
(CH Char-Ru's Living Legend O'Taka x CH O'Taka's Prime Meridian)

We did it!! Daisy is our second champion and our first to be totally owner-handled/finished. Daisy and Dad made their show debut as a team in September, 1992 and went WB for a 5-point major under judge Mrs. George John Wanner, Sr. This was the first of many impressive wins for Daddy and his girl. Needless to say, we are VERY proud of Daisy and thank the judges that recognized her elegance, beauty and love of showing:

- Mr. William Bergum - BOW for 2 points (from puppy class)
- Mrs. George John Wanner, Sr. - WB for 5-point major
- Mr. William Bergum - BOW for 2 points
- Mrs. Vera Halpin Bistrim - WB/BOS for 2 points
- Mrs. Paula Hartinger - WB for 3 point major

Daisy is pictured above going WB/BOS under judge Mr. Roy Prado for a 5-point major and her championship title.

A heartfelt thank you to our dear friends for your help, support and love. We couldn't have done it without you:

A Look to the Future!

We will have an additional rating system. Beginning with the 1993 show results, in addition to the present BIS, Group and Breed method of ranking, we will keep track and show rankings based on Specials defeated in the ring. It should be fun to have to two methods. Also by the National this year we will have 1992 year end results by this method.

Our beloved Sam is shown taking the Breed from the Veterans class under Mrs Walton at the NCALAC Specialty and then takes a Group IV under Dr Draper. Thank you both for a very exciting day.

Mrs Walton also pointed to a Sam son, Barker's Delirious, for the 5 point major from the 6-9 puppy class and gave reserve to his brother, Barker's Paranoid. Congratulations to their breeders Sandy and Randy Barker.

Mrs Walton then gave Winners Bitch to a Sam granddaughter sired by Ch Misti Acres Kopper Penny. Congratulations to Barbara & Don Schwartz on their new champion Khasa's Lucy Fur.

Question: I had a dog develop severe diarrhea and vomiting and the veterinarian had me get Pedialyte for him in addition to medicine to clear up the diarrhea. What is the purpose of the Pedialyte and is it available in a powder form to carry to the shows?

Answer: Pedialyte was prescribed in order to replace both fluids and vital electrolytes that the dog was losing with both vomiting and diarrhea. It contains potassium, chloride, sodium, and bicarbonate as well as glucose. The potassium and sodium restore the electrolytes which when severely depleted can result in muscle cramping and even poor contractility of the heart. The chloride and bicarbonate are to restore the acid/base balance of the body and the glucose is for both facilitating the sodium and water absorption and as a source of energy. It does not have anything in it to stop diarrhea or the vomiting but is often given in place of food or other fluids so the gastrointestinal track has a rest from food that may be continuing to irritate it.

At one time there were powders available in packets but currently they are not available. One can make their own solution by mixing the following in a liter (a little more than a quart) of water. Do not store this more than 24 hours after is made up.

- Sodium Chloride 1/2 teaspoon
- Potassium Chloride 1&1/4 teaspoon
- Sodium Bicarbonate 1/2 teaspoon
- Glucose 2 Tablespoons

This makes up an oral rehydration solution.

The formula in layman’s terms (utilizing items easily found)

- Morton’s Lite Salt* 2 teaspoons (both sodium and potassium chloride in above)
- Baking Soda 1/2 teaspoon
- Cane Sugar 2 Tablespoons

(* has filler in it therefore must use more)

We also used this formula for all of our dogs at shows to prevent heat and stress exhaustion. We generally give them the rehydrating solution one time and plain water the next if none of them is showing signs of a problem but upon the first sign of any problem switch to only the rehydration solution. The dogs seem to prefer the homemade version to the Pedialyte.

Caution - overuse of this can cause problems too, especially with the acid/base balance of the body.

From the Editor’s Book Shelf - Sally Ann Helf

(reprinted with permission from The Lhasa Reporter, March-Apr 93)

The Hijacking of the Humane Movement by Rod and Patti Strand, published by Doral Publishing, is a must for all libraries and especially for that of the dog “lover.” This is true for several reasons which are thoroughly covered with extensive evidence by the authors: the terrorists activities of cult-like animal rights groups; the insidious infiltration of the beliefs of these groups into education materials used in our schools; the subversive quality of their beliefs which are contrary to democracy, the collection of extensive funds by unethical standards.

The book is well written, well researched, and documented. Those who have purebred dogs need to be both aware and wary of the groups and people delineated. Moreover, before contributing even a sympathy dollar to solicitations by these groups, the use of funds by the groups should be carefully checked. The ultimate expressed aim of animal rights groups, readily repeated by their representatives, is to eliminate not just our pets, but all farm animals and other animal performers. Such groups refuse to recognize the value in human/animal relationships.

To further their beliefs, the groups foster antirationalism and emotionalism by contrived video evidence which present false pictures of their “victims.” They have destroyed years of health research with their terrorist activities. This research concerned many debilitating illnesses. The groups have, by false evidence, destroyed businesses and occupations. They have insidiously worked within national health research groups and then led destructive attacks against them. They continue to do so.

This is an important book. Cults and activist groups could destroy “life” as we know it, not just our relationships with our dogs, but freedoms we deem important. It is a book of which we must not just be aware, but also should heed To be aware of the potential of terrorist activity is to be forewarned so that protective steps can be taken.

As the book underscores, many of the leaders in the animal rights movement emigrated from Great Britain where they, like the IRA, undertook many terrorist acts. Of these facts we all need to be aware. The book, Hijacking of the Humane Movement by Rod & Patti Strand, brings the activists’ activities under one cover. Read it!

vaginal discharges, as well as aborted tissues, are also excellent sources for isolation, culture and identification of the bacteria.

As an alternative, several different types of serologic tests are available for diagnosis. The major problem with these tests is that false positive reactions are seen occasionally. Consequently, it may be necessary to run more than one type of blood test to make a diagnosis, and even then the test may not be conclusive. Because positive cultures are not always obtained in infected dogs, the serologic tests remain the tests of choice.

False negative tests have also been reported, especially where there are small localized areas of infection such as in the testicle or prostate gland.

The decision to treat cannot be taken lightly, especially for infected dogs in breeding colonies. Treatment must be intensive, and may be expensive and long-term. Part of the problem is that the bacteria live within the cells, making it difficult for antibiotics to reach them.

A variety of antibiotics have been used, but combinations of tetracycline and streptomycin seem to be more effective than other antibiotic treatments. Untreated females may produce normal litters after aborting, but their puppies usually are infected, and they usually continue to shed the organism. Even treated females may produce apparently normal but infected pups. Males usually become sterile, with or without treatment.

Permanent cures are hard to evaluate, and relapses are common. The only way to be reasonably certain of a cure is to periodically culture blood, vaginal fluids, semen and urine and blood tests. Even then, because of the possibility of localized areas of infection, repeated negative cultures don’t necessarily prove that the patient is cured.

Fortunately, the probability of human infection is low and, although certainly a consideration, is not an overriding one. Therefore, based solely on medical and kennel management considerations, the pet owner and breeding kennel are faced with similar yet different decisions.

There is no question that many brood bitches and studs are more than mere property. Having treated breeding stock for a variety of skin problems and other ills, and having seen the care and affection lavished on them by many kennel owners, it is obvious to me that these dogs can be as dear and emotionally intertwined with them as the most pampered household pet.

Yet the breeder has a concern not shared by the average pet owner. Regardless of any emotional attachments, the breeding kennel is still a business, with a major investment in breeding stock, property and reputation. Knowing that brucellosis has the potential to infect all of the breeding stock, as well as privately owned dogs brought to the kennel for stud service or breeding, makes it imperative that infection be contained as soon as it is recognized. Because treatment is intensive, long-term and often unsatisfactory with many relapses after apparent cures, infected dogs must be isolated from any possible contact with healthy ones.

If they can be moved to different premises, where they can be treated and serve as pets, that is ideal. In a worst case scenario, and as a final resort, infected dogs would have to be euthanized for the protection of the others. One other consideration is the public health aspect of the disease. Although human infection is uncommon it can occur, so it is essential that every precaution be taken to prevent infection of the owner and the kennel employees.

Fortunately, the pet owner is not faced with the same problems. While it is true that the same public health concerns are present, these can be minimized with good sanitary management practices. Because the bacteria often localize in the uterus and testicles, infected dogs should be spayed and castrated to prevent them from being either intentionally or accidentally bred. Treatment must be continued until the veterinarian says it is safe to stop, and the veterinarian's advice should be followed regarding post-treatment testing and cultures.

Save Money - Save Time - Improve Your Lhasa's Win Ratio

The 1992 JUDGING FORM provides in one easy to read and study judging results that can save you time and money in showing your LHASA's.

Looking For A Major
The Comprehensive index that covers 1100 shows provides at a glance the entries for every show in 1992.

What Judge should I be showing under?
350 Lhasa Judges and how they placed dogs at every show. PLUS the new Judge Ratings and Judge preferences in Lhasa size are included for most Judges.

What has my Lhasa's competition done in 1992?
Results of how almost every dog that placed in 1992 performed. Who was winning, who was losing. Every Lhasa that placed in the Group, who was the Judge. Even more who was the Group judge where no Lhasa placed in the Group.

If you are a serious Lhasa exhibitor this is vital information in planning your dog's 1993 campaign. A service that is designed to allow you to study the Lhasa results from every show in the United States. This compact study is now being franchised to other breeds because THE JUDGING FORM is the only service of its kind in pure-bred dogs.

What our clients tell us.
I saved money by not entering shows that could never be majors. I think your Judge ratings are right on the money. Saved me making a long trip under a Judge that never would have put my dog up. I have a new insight into what is happening in the Lhasa ring in other parts of the country.

Just think ...the price of the 200 page Judging Form is not much more than the cost of a single entry fee. And we offer you one more feature:

When you purchase the 1992 Judging Form we include, FREE a printout of all placements for your dogs (if they appear in any 1992 show) either by your name or your kennel name.

SPECIAL OFFER: We also offer a Computer version of the 1993 results database, for only $50. The 1993 Judging Form service will be bi-monthly for only $50.00 per year and we will provide the operating system FREE.

The cost of this annual service is $25 plus $2.50 for first class shipping. By check, or credit card.
